2.3.1 Student Centric methods of the department

1. Experimental Learning

The Department uses following modes as an experimental learning.

1- Teaching aids : The department uses various teaching aids to teach a lesson as it is very necessary that a student must create a mental picture of the matter taught, for better understanding. Hence students are often asked to prepare.

- Charts
- Videos are shown thorough ICT related to lesson.
- Collage.

2. Project Preparation : Often students of PG classes are asked to prepare projects on various poets, dramatist, based on their works given in the syllabus, this gives them deep insight into the topic, as thorough study is required for project preparation. It can be assumed to have equivalent importance as practicals in science subjects.

3. Project of Museum preparation : The department works on department Museum project. In this the students are asked to prepare project on creative writers , giving special emphasis on extended knowledge about the writers, or unknown or unexplored facts that is pictures of their family / house / furniture / original script etc.

- 4. Grammar Activity book : The department has prepared Grammar activity book , for UG first year students , to give them practice of grammatical module , in the class , as a method of experiment learning.

- 5. Vocabulary Diagnostic test : the department has prepared a booklet known as Vocabulary Diagnostic Test for UG Second year students , to give them a thorough practice of vocabulary items.
