INSTITUTIONAL SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Institutional social responsibility of any institution is about taking responsibility of the social and environmental aspects in and around the institution. One of the major aspects of SR is to create a winning situation for the institution and for the society at large. This aspect can help making any institution more competitive and will raise the standard of all components.

Social responsibility in teaching institution encompasses many different areas including:

1. The need to strengthen civil commitment and active citizenship
2. To provide services to the community through community engagement and outreach
3. To promote economic and national development
4. To promote ethical behavior issues.
5. To develop a sense of civil citizenship by encouraging the students and the academics and administrative staff, to provide social services to their local community.
6. To promote ecological or environmental commitment for local and global sustainable development
7. To develop local and global human resources
8. To expand human knowledge through quality research and education for the nation and for humanity

As defined by Reiser (2008) this concept is –

“a policy of ethical quality of the performance of the university/college community (students, faculty and administrative employee) via the responsible management of the educational, cognitive, labour, and environmental impacts produced by the university/college in an interactive dialogue with society to promote a sustainable human development.

According to Mendez (2012) This provides an approach to science, technology and research in which contribution to the economically disadvantaged are given value and attention.

Educational Institution's Stakeholders are-

Students, Teachers, Administrative Staff, Parents Unions, Local Community, Regulator Government

To practice the ISR the institutional leaders should emphasize responsibility in public, ethical behavior and be good citizens. They should be role models for ethics, and protection of community, health, safety and environmental . Its practicing should be to support the issue but should be within the limits of resource of the institution. Examples can be-

1. Education in community
2. pursuing environmental resource excellence
3. Practicing resource
4. Promoting and improving the health of the community
5. Performing community service
6. Conducting research to generate social economic development
7. Providing guidelines for the development and sustainability of society
8. Educational institution can also influence other organization for addressing these concerns

The goal should be the triple helix model (etzkowitz and leydesdroff 200) under which universities, local industry and the government should be partners with social, cultural and economic goals and resources.

These partnerships should require all parties to develop human assets, stimulating regional development, innovative and growth. As this is a knowledge based development by forming strategic alliances among institution.

Internalization is another aspect of research that can be use to achieve sustainability and development for institution and society.

OBJECTIVES

1. Social involvement
2. Decentralizing education process-
3. University and industry collaboration
4. Institutional management- promoting sustainable development procedures for the management of campus
5. Community management -
